

MIRO BILBROUGH, WRITER/DIRECTOR

MIRO BILBROUGH was born in New Zealand and lives in Sydney, Australia where she first began to make films. Her debut as a screenwriter-director was with Urn (1995). Urn gained theatrical release in Sydney and was screened widely at international film festivals. Since then Miro has written across many film formats and directed several of her own short dramas. Bartleby (26", 2001) won the Silver Medal for Fiction at Bilbao International Film Festival and her short feature Floodhouse (2003) received three Australian Film Institute nominations including Best Short Film and Best Original Screenplay and an Australian Writer's Guild nomination. Floodhouse also screened In Competition at Mannheim-Heidelberg IFF in 2004 where it received a Special Mention for 'Fresh Young Storyteller'. In 2002 Bad Baby Amy, a children's animation written by Miro and directed by Anthony Lucas was nominated for a BAFTA. As a co-writer her credits are David Caesar's docu-drama Carcrash (1995) and documentary The Fifth Continent (1998) both of which were short-listed for the NSW Premier's Literary Awards. Miro is currently attending the Binger Filmlab in Amsterdam where she is being supported by the Australian Film Commission and the New South Wales Film and Television Office to write her feature film Venice.

Miro also works as a script editor (Girl In A Mirror), press book writer (The Piano, Moulin Rouge); as project officer for the NSW FTO, and as an independent script reader for the FTO, AFC, SBSI and privately for filmmakers. In 2006 she was a guest lecturer at the Sydney International Film School.
